Plaintiffs, Anne Milgram, Acting Attorney General of New Jersey, on behalf of Franklin L. Widmann, Chief of the New Jersey Bureau of Securities (the "Bureau"), (collectively, "Plaintiffs") by way of Complaint and upon information, knowledge, and belief state:

2. Plaintiffs bring this civil action under the Securities Law for violations of: N.J.S.A. 49:3-52(a) (employing a device, scheme, or artifice to defraud); N.J.S.A. 49:3-52(b) (making false statements of or omitting material facts); N.J.S.A. 49:3-52(c) (engaging in an act, practice, or course of business that operates as a fraud or deceit); N.J.S.A. 49:3-60 (selling unregistered securities); N.J.S.A. 49:3-56(a) (acting as an agent without registration); and N.J.S.A. 49:3-56(h) (employing unregistered agents).

3. a. Fred J. Miller ("Miller"): Miller resided or resides at _____ New Jersey and was or is a managing member, general partner, officer, and/or owner of the Miller/Riedman Entities (as defined in paragraph six), which were instrumentalities of the fraudulent scheme alleged in this Complaint.

4. a. Eric Riedman ("Riedman"): Riedman resided or resides at _____ New York and has or had an office for his businesses in Fort Lee, New Jersey.

b. Riedman is or was a managing member, general partner, officer, and/or owner of many Miller/Riedman Entities, which were instrumentalities of the fraudulent scheme alleged in this Complaint.

c. Riedman offered and sold securities issued by the Miller/Riedman Entities to investors throughout the United States for a commission in the form of interests in the Miller/Riedman Entities.

FACTS

A. DEFENDANTS' FRAUDULENT SCHEME AND SALE OF UNREGISTERED SECURITIES

21. From 1997 to 2002, in Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey, Defendants fraudulently sold unregistered securities issued by the Miller/Riedman Entities.

22. The Miller/Riedman Entities, which Defendants operated as a single economic enterprise, engaged in a variety of business activities, including day-trading, health-care consulting, real estate, oil-and-gas speculation, and non-hazardous waste facilities.

23. The securities issued by the Miller/Riedman Entities and fraudulently sold to, from, and within New Jersey by Defendants included:

- a. promissory notes that matured in one or two years, promised to pay interest at a rate of at least 12% per year, and promised investors a percentage of profits;

- b. ownership units of certain Miller/Riedman Entities that promised investors a percentage of profits;
- c. partnership and membership interests of Miller/Riedman Entities that promised investors a percentage of profits; and
- d. shares of stock of Miller/Riedman Entities.

24. Investors were passive and Defendants completely controlled the Miller/Riedman Entities.

25. The securities issued by the Miller/Riedman Entities were not registered with the Bureau, exempt from registration, or federal covered securities.

26. Defendants were unregistered with the Bureau as agents of the Miller/Riedman Entities or as broker-dealers to sell securities issued by the Miller/Riedman Entities to, from, or within New Jersey.

27. In offering and selling securities, the Miller/Riedman Entities, through Defendants, falsely stated to investors that investors' funds would be used for a specific Miller/Riedman Entity and failed to disclose to investors that funds would be misappropriated to pay: (a) other investors; (b) Defendants' personal expenses; and (c) other Miller/Riedman Entities' debt.

28. For instance, Defendants diverted investors' funds from the Miller/Riedman Entities to pay Riedman's obligations under $800,000.00 of promissory notes Riedman had issued from 1990 to 2001 (the "Riedman Promissory Notes").

29. In addition, Defendants diverted investors' funds for their personal use, such as paying rent, cable bills, telephone bills, Miller's children's college tuition, and credit card bills.

30. From 1996 to 2002, Defendants diverted approximately $705,000.00 to Miller and $530,000.00 to Riedman of the Miller/Riedman Entities' funds for their personal use.

31. The following are specific examples of Defendants' fraudulent sale of unregistered securities and diversion and misappropriation of funds.

B. DEFENDANTS' DAY-TRADING SECURITIES OFFERINGS

32. From 1997 to 2002, the Miller/Riedman Entities, through Defendants, fraudulently offered and sold the unregistered securities issued by their day-trading businesses to investors throughout the United States, including New Jersey, from 120 Charlotte Place, Englewood Cliffs, New Jersey (the "Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center").

1. The M&R Securities Offering

33. Through Defendants, M&R offered and sold "ownership units" of M&R using a Private Placement Memorandum ("PPM") dated March 1, 1997, which falsely represented that M&R provided day traders with funding and sophisticated day-trading technology through the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center in exchange for fees and a percentage of the day traders' gains.

34. During 1997, M&R, through Defendants, raised $75,000.00 through the sale of M&R ownership units to at least five investors.

35. An M&R ownership unit entitled an investor to a percentage of M&R's profits.

36. Defendants controlled M&R. M&R's investors were passive, with no operational control of M&R.

37. In offering and selling the M&R ownership units, M&R, through Defendants, misrepresented and omitted material information to investors by:

- a. falsely stating that investors' funds would fund M&R's business operations;
- b. falsely stating that Defendants already owned the day-trading equipment needed for M&R's business operations and that "[b]y utilizing the state of the art systems provided by the General Managers, [M&R's] traders may have their orders executed in a matter of seconds";
- c. falsely stating that no more than "$25,000.00" of the investors' funds would be used for startup costs, including day-trading equipment;
- d. falsely stating that M&R would "invest substantially all of its capital in entities managed by unaffiliated-persons who will trade the funds so invested and share in the profits and losses";
- e. failing to disclose that investors' funds would be misappropriated to pay other investors;

- f. failing to disclose that investors' funds would be diverted to pay Defendants' personal debt;
- g. failing to disclose that investors' funds would be diverted for Defendants' personal use;
- h. failing to disclose that investors' funds and the assets of M&R would be misappropriated to fund Defendants' other businesses; and
- i. failing to disclose that Defendants intended to declare M&R a failed business and misappropriate investors' funds and M&R's assets, including day-trading technology, to Defendants' other businesses.

38. Contrary to the representations in the M&R PPM, the proceeds from the sale of the M&R ownership units were used to purchase day-trading equipment and not invested with day traders.

39. As part of Defendants' fraudulent scheme, in 1998, Defendants ceased operating M&R, began operating and soliciting investors for ACP, an entity that operated for similar business purposes and from the same location as M&R, and misappropriated M&R's funds and assets, including M&R's day-trading technology, to ACP.

40. Additionally, Defendants misappropriated $40,500.00 from M&R to ACP. From ACP's bank account, Defendants misappropriated M&R's funds to ACP's business and for personal use.

2. The ACP Securities Offering

41. From the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center, in early 1998, Defendants began operating ACP as a branch office of Carlin Equities Corp. ("Carlin"), a broker-dealer registered in the Central Registration Depository under number 31295.

42. As a branch office of Carlin, ACP provided Carlin's traders with administrative services and day-trading technology.

43. In return, Carlin paid ACP commissions based on the number of trades originating from the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center.

44. In or about August 1998, Defendants began offering and selling promissory notes and membership interests issued by ACP (collectively, the "ACP Securities").

45. Most ACP promissory notes matured in one or two years, promised to pay interest at a rate of 12% per year, promised investors a percentage of ACP's profits, and included an option to exchange the unpaid principal portion for a membership interest in ACP.

46. ACP membership interests promised investors a percentage of ACP's profits.

47. ACP's managing members, including Miller and Riedman, controlled ACP. ACP's investors were passive, with no operational control of ACP.

48. From August 1998 to April 1999, Defendants raised $290,000.00 by selling ACP Securities to eleven investors.

49. From January 2000 to December 2000, Defendants raised $457,400.00 by selling ACP Securities to over thirty investors.

50. In total, from August 1998 to May 2001, Defendants raised over $1 million by selling ACP Securities.

51. As a commission for selling ACP Securities, Riedman received an ownership interest in ACP.

a. Material Misrepresentations and Omissions in Connection with the Sale of ACP Securities

52. In offering and selling ACP Securities, Defendants only provided investors with a four page description of ACP's business plan, ACP's "Operating Agreement," a term sheet, a subscription protocol, an investment questionnaire, and a cover letter (collectively, the "ACP Written Materials").

53. In offering and selling the ACP Securities, ACP, through Defendants, misrepresented and omitted material information to investors by:

- a. falsely stating that investors' funds would be used for ACP's business;

- b. falsely stating in May 2002 solicitation letters the financial condition and success of ACP by representing, among other things, that ACP was formed "in May of 1999 and [since then] . . . ha[d] grown from 2 traders to 33 traders . . . generating approximately $200,000.00 in monthly revenues";
 - c. failing to disclose that ACP lost $134,370.00 in 1998 and $495,558.00 in 1999;
 - d. failing to disclose the intended use of the proceeds of the ACP Securities;
 - e. failing to disclose the financial condition of ACP and the makers of the ACP promissory notes;
 - f. failing to disclose the purported failure of ACP's predecessor, M&R;
 - g. failing to disclose any of the risks carried by the ACP Securities;
 - h. failing to disclose that investors' and ACP's funds would be diverted for Defendants' personal use;
 - i. failing to disclose that investors' and ACP's funds would be misappropriated to Defendants' other businesses; and
 - j. failing to disclose that investors' and ACP's funds would be misappropriated to pay other investors, including investors of Defendants' other businesses.
- b. Diversion and Misappropriation of Investors' and ACP's Funds

54. Unbeknown to investors, ACP, through Riedman, diverted ACP's funds to pay Riedman Promissory Notes holders and for his personal use by: (a) from November 1997 to August 2000, diverting over $400,000.00 to pay, among other things, Riedman Promissory Note holders; and (b) from November 1997 to August 2000, diverting ACP's funds to pay his personal expenses, such as his cable bill, rent, and credit card bills.

55. Unbeknown to investors, ACP, through Defendants, misappropriated ACP's funds to other Miller/Riedman Entities by: (a) in June 1998, misappropriating $75,000.00 of ACP's funds to M&R Financing and other unrelated businesses; and (b) in July 2000, misappropriating over $5,000.00 to SciMark II.

3. The TCC Securities Offering

56. From 1999 to 2002, using several different PPMs, Defendants offered and sold securities issued by TCC from the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center.

57. The TCC PPMs represented that TCC funded day traders in exchange for a percentage of the day traders' gains and earned income by providing day traders with consulting and administrative services.

58. Initially, in late 1999, Defendants sold $323,000.00 of TCC promissory notes to fifteen investors. These initial TCC promissory notes matured in one year, promised to pay interest at a rate of 12% per year, promised investors a percentage of TCC's profits, and were "convertible," meaning the unpaid principal amount was exchangeable for a partnership interest in TCC.

59. Most of the initial TCC promissory notes holders converted their unpaid principal into TCC partnership interests (the "TCC Securities"), which Defendants began selling in late 2000.

60. The TCC Securities promised investors a percentage of TCC's profits.

61. TCC's investors were passive with no operational control of TCC.

62. From January 16, 2001 to January 16, 2002, Defendants raised over $1.6 million by selling TCC securities to at least twenty-five investors.

63. In total, from 1999 to 2002, Defendants raised over $2 million by selling TCC Securities to thirty investors.

64. As a commission for selling the TCC Securities, Riedman received an ownership interest in TCC.

a. Material Misrepresentations and Omissions in Connection with the Sale of TCC Securities

65. In selling and offering the TCC Securities, TCC, through Defendants and the TCC PPMs, misrepresented and omitted material information by:

- a. falsely stating that over eighty-seven percent of TCC's funds would be invested in securities by traders;
- b. falsely stating that less than six percent of TCC's funds would be used for "operations, marketing and infrastructure requirements, as well as for other general business purposes";
- c. failing to disclose the risks carried by the TCC Securities;
- d. failing to disclose that investors' and TCC's funds would be diverted for Defendants' personal use;

- e. failing to disclose that investors' and TCC's funds would be misappropriated to other Miller/Riedman Entities; and
 - f. failing to disclose that investors' and TCC's funds would be misappropriated to pay other investors, including investors of other Miller/Riedman Entities.
- b. Diversion and Misappropriation of Investors' and TCC's Funds

66. Contrary to the representations in the TCC PPMs, TCC invested less than half of the investors' funds in day-trading joint ventures.

67. In fact, by October 2001, Defendants had sold almost $1.6 million of TCC securities, but had only invested $587,000.00 with day traders.

68. Unknown to investors, TCC, through Defendants, misappropriated TCC's funds to other Miller/Riedman Entities by, among other things, misappropriating over $150,000.00 to ACP from August 1999 to May 2002. From ACP's bank account, Defendants diverted and misappropriated TCC's funds to other Miller/Riedman Entities.

69. In 2002, Defendants misappropriated approximately $150,000.00 of TCC's funds to GCP, a Miller/Riedman Entity purportedly created to replace ACP.

70. As a consequence of these and other misappropriations, by 2001, Defendants had misappropriated $771,461.00 of TCC's $1,538,2534.00 purported net worth to Miller/Riedman Entities, rather than investing such funds with day traders as represented to investors in the TCC PPMs.

71. Also, Defendants diverted TCC's funds for personal use.

72. From 1999 to early 2002, Miller diverted approximately $389,000.00 from TCC for his personal use.

73. Additionally, Defendants diverted TCC's funds to themselves through alter-ego entities.

74. In 2001 and 2002, Defendants diverted $19,700.00 from TCC to Capstone Energy for Riedman's his personal use.

75. From late 1999 to May 2002, Miller diverted $200,000.00 from TCC to Commercial Tech for Miller's personal use.

76. On TCC's internal accounting records, Miller misstated nearly all transfers from TCC to Commercial Tech as loans to ACP.

C. DEFENDANTS' OTHER SECURITIES OFFERINGS

77. In addition to the day-trading securities offerings, Defendants offered and sold securities of their other businesses.

1. The SciMark Securities Offering

78. From 1993 to 1996, Riedman solicited investors for SciMark, a failing healthcare consulting businesses owned by third parties.

79. In selling $200,000.00 of limited partnership interests of SciMark to eight investors, Riedman falsely represented that the investment was "extra secure" with "essentially no risk." These original SciMark investors lost all of the funds they invested with SciMark.

80. In 1996, Riedman purchased the economically-distressed SciMark for $15,000.00, renamed the corporation "SciMark II," incorporated it under the laws of New Jersey, and relocated it the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center.

81. From 1996 to 2000, from the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center, Riedman sold approximately $150,000.00 of SciMark II shares of stock (the "SciMark II Securities") to investors and, in some instances, promissory notes that promised to pay interest at a rate of 12% per year and matured in one year.

82. In addition to selling SciMark II Securities for money, Riedman sold SciMark II securities in exchange for investors' existing promissory notes issued by SciMark II, SciMark, and, in some instances, by Riedman.

83. From December 1997 to May 1998, Riedman sold SciMark II Securities to twelve investors through solicitation letters and documents summarizing SciMark II's business plan (the "SciMark II Written Materials").

84. SciMark II's investors were passive with no operational control.

85. The SciMark II Written Materials misrepresented and omitted material information by:

- a. falsely stating that SciMark II was a viable "healthcare marketing and consulting firm";
- b. falsely stating that "[a]s of September 30, 1997 [SciMark II] ha[d] an estimated value of $500,000.00";
- c. falsely stating that SciMark II would "double or triple in value during the next two to three years";
- d. falsely stating that SciMark II was "in an excellent position to grow";
- e. failing to disclose the true worth and financial condition of SciMark II;
- f. failing to disclose that the SciMark II Securities were not registered with the Bureau;
- g. failing to disclose the risks of the SciMark Securities; and
- h. failing to disclose that SciMark II's predecessor had failed.

86. Contrary to Riedman's representations in the SciMark II Written Materials, SciMark was a failing business, which lost $91,190.00 in 1997.

87. Furthermore, contrary to Riedman's representation that SciMark II was worth $500,000.00, in 1997 SciMark was only worth $179,531.00.

88. By 2000, SciMark II ceased operating due to its poor financial condition.

2. The Texas Waste Disposal Facility Securities Offering

89. Crossroads Environmental Corp. ("Crossroads") was a Texas corporation owned by third parties that possessed a permit from a Texas regulatory body to operate a non-hazardous waste disposal facility.

90. From 1996 to 2000, Defendants solicited investors for a venture involving Crossroads's non-hazardous waste disposal facility (the "Crossroads Venture").

91. Defendants solicited investors for the Crossroads Venture through certain Miller/Riedman Entities, including EPS, Entech, and Target Energy (collectively, the "Miller/Riedman Crossroads Entities").

92. The Miller/Riedman Crossroads Entities operated from the Englewood Cliffs Remote Investment Center.

93. Under an existing note and agreement with Crossroads, the Miller/Riedman Crossroads Entities loaned funds to Crossroads in exchange for an assignment of the Crossroad Venture's profits.

94. From May 1, 1997 to May 1, 1998, Defendants raised $436,400.00 by selling the Crossroads Securities to thirty-one investors.

95. In total, from April 1997 to December 1998, Defendants raised over $1.4 million by selling securities issued by the Miller/Riedman Crossroads Entities (the "Crossroads Securities"), including promissory notes and "Net Profit Interests."

96. Most of the Crossroads promissory notes promised to pay interest at a rate of 12% per year and matured in three years and five months.

97. The Crossroads "Net Profits Interest" entitled investors to a percentage of the Miller/Riedman Crossroads Entities' profits under the agreement with Crossroads.

98. Purchasers of the Crossroads Securities were passive.

3. The M&R Financing Securities Offering

99. In or about mid-1996, Defendants created and began selling securities issued by M&R Financing.

100. Specifically, Defendants sold limited partnership interests of M&R Financing and promissory notes issued by M&R Financing (the "M&R Financing Securities").

101. The M&R Financing promissory notes matured in eight to twelve months and promised to pay interest at a rate of 12% per year.

102. From December 1996 to April 1998, Defendants raised approximately $355,000.00 by selling M&R Financing Securities to eighteen investors.

103. In offering and selling the M&R Financing Securities, M&R Financing, through Defendants, falsely represented to investors that investors' funds would be used to purchase an existing New York corporation "engaged in the business of accounts receivable and investor financing [and] factoring and arranging for letters of credit in favor of domestic companies doing business with foreign suppliers."

104. Instead, Defendants diverted and misappropriated M&R Financing's funds to themselves and to other Miller/Riedman Entities.

105. For instance, Defendants misappropriated $98,000.00 from M&R Financing to ACP.

106. Additionally, Miller diverted at least $61,000.00 from M&R Financing for personal use by diverting $11,000.00 to Commercial Tech and $50,000.00 directly to himself.

107. In 1997 and 1998, Miller diverted funds from M&R Financing to pay costs associated with his child's college education.

108. Likewise, from 1996 to 1998, Defendants diverted $100,000.00 from M&R Financing to Riedman.

SECURITIES LAW VIOLATIONS

(as to Miller, Riedman, M&R, ACP, TCC, TRC, SciMark II, M&R Financing, Commercial Tech, Capstone Energy, ER Associates)
Violations of N.J.S.A. 49:3-52(a) for Employing a Device, Scheme, or Artifice to Defraud

109. Plaintiffs repeat the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 108 as if set forth fully herein.

110. The M&R ownership units, ACP Securities, TCC promissory notes, TCC Securities, SciMark Securities, and M&R Financing Securities (the "Miller/Riedman Securities") are notes, stocks, investment contracts, transferable shares, or other evidence of indebtedness defined as "securities" under N.J.S.A. 49:3-49(m) that Defendants offered and sold to, from, or within New Jersey.

111. In offering and selling the Miller/Riedman Securities, M&R, ACP, TCC, SciMark II, and M&R Financing (the "Miller/Riedman Issuers"), through Defendants and their directors, officers, members, employees, partners, agents, and all other persons acting in concert therewith, knowingly or recklessly employed devices, schemes, or artifices to defraud investors in violation of N.J.S.A. 49:3-52(a). Such violations of N.J.S.A. 49:3-52(a) are specifically alleged in this Complaint and include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a. misrepresenting and omitting material information in connection with the offer and sale of the Miller/Riedman Securities;
- b. operating the Miller/Riedman Entities as a single economic enterprise to defraud investors by, among other things, commingling the funds of the Miller/Riedman Entities and misappropriating funds among the Miller/Riedman Entities;
- c. purposely misstating information on the accounting records of certain Miller/Riedman Entities to hide Defendants' diversion of funds for their personal use; and
- d. diverting Miller/Riedman Entities' funds for Defendants' personal use.

112. Defendants employed devices, schemes, or artifices to defraud investors, as alleged in this Complaint, to, among other things, pay personal debt, other investors, Riedman Promissory Note holders, and their personal expenses.

113.
